Greetings. I'm writing to you as I've found an available position that's suitable to my set of skills. I found it on your career page. I am the perfect match for your position.

I have both a college degree and vocationally information and communications technology degree. Before I've worked as an IT support and on rollercoasters. I'm a computer science student at the University of Eastern Finland.

I show up on time and do the work that's necessary for the continued success of the company. I never give up when problems show up it's just another opportunity to turn things around to positive results.

I'm able to do software engineering work to fulfill the necessary requirements of work projects. I can work with everybody, and lead others to get through any obstacle that's in the way to succeed in the company. I'm open to learning independently whatever necessary additional technology is required to complete the work.

I have the knowledge of the necessary technologies listed and I'm good at using the debugger as well as reverse engineering to figure out the correct solution for any problem. I'm a great communicator and a quick learner as I've had to lead a student council in high school which includes a lot of notetaking and time management not to mention using my diffused problem-solving abilities.

I've always been in those technologies and doing the actual deep work to increase the top line results and bring in more equity to the company that way, I think that's the primary hallmark marker of me and the most productive contribution I'll make to your company.

I'm also able to attend any educational programs or extracurricular activities you provide in addition to the compensation of this role. I can do any heavy lifting that's required. I am happy to learn more if you have any other internal roles I'd be suitable for.

You can contact me at any time to set up an interview, and please feel free to do so. Thank you for your consideration. I'm up for it at any time.

Sincerely
